SPLIT:

Seen from the sea, the largest city on the Adriatic coast is quite something. You'll witness this yourself when you set off kayaking after breakfast. Paddling along the shores of Split, admire the 1700-years-old Diocletian's Palace, the lively heart of Split. As you pass by and the landmarks slowly disappear behind you, take in the pristine beauty of Marjan hill's southern shores and enjoy the landscapes dotted with remarkable sites: the gallery of Ivan Meštrović, Croatia's famous sculptor, and Villa Dalmatia, formerly the villa of the former Yugoslav president Tito. Round off your kayak tour with a drink by the Maritime Research Institute and a visit to the attractive Bay of Bene before returning to Split for one last memorable glimpse of its stunning Roman Palace. Spend the rest of the day discovering the hidden corners of Split.

SPLIT:

This morning, you'll start from Split, traveling to the village of čikotina LaÄ'a for an introduction to rafting and safety before getting onto the real thing. Put on a helmet, grab a paddle and literally go with the flow! After a 100-kilometers-long run through the barren hinterland of Dalmatia, the Cetina River ultimately becomes a gorge and flows into the Adriatic Sea in an idyllic spot by the captivating town of Omiš; often called Croatia's best kept secret. The most abundant in water of all the rivers around here, Cetina is loved both for its dreamy, wavering bits and its exciting rapids. Experience three hours of excitement before ending in Blato on Cetina, a scenic spot where you will have time to relax and look back on this adventure. After returning to Split, the remainder of the day is at your leisure. Enjoy a nice dinner in one Split's many restaurants, then get a good night's sleep for another active day ahead.
